

Obstacles to Development

7th Annual Sociology of Development Conference

October 19-21, 2018

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS AT URBANA-CHAMPAIGN
URBANA, ILLINOIS

I ILLINOIS
Sociology
COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS & SCIENCES

Welcome

On behalf of the Department of Sociology, I would like to welcome you to the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and the Seventh Annual Sociology of Development conference. We are truly delighted that you have chosen to join us for this conference, an important aim of which is to identify and explore some of the many obstacles to development present in the world today. We are looking forward to many thought-provoking presentations and engaging conversations on numerous topics related to development. October is a usually a lovely time of the year in this Midwest college town, and we very much hope that you will enjoy your visit.

Brian Dill
Interim Head

About the University of Illinois

Since its founding in 1867, the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has earned a reputation as a world-class leader in research, teaching, and public engagement. With our land-grant heritage as a foundation, we pioneer innovative research that tackles global problems and expands the human experience. Our transformative learning experiences, in and out of the classroom, are designed to produce alumni who desire to make a significant, societal impact.

About Urbana-Champaign

Located within only a couple hours of three major metropolitan cities (Chicago, Indianapolis, and St. Louis) Urbana-Champaign is an outstanding micro-urban community. With more than 1,000 acres of city parks, we have been named one of the greenest cities in the U.S. Although Urbana-Champaign is often hailed as the home of the University of Illinois, the twin cities have much more to offer. For ideas about things to see and do while you are here in our community please see the links below. Enjoy!

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Tami Bond

University of Illinois

Tami Bond is the Nathan M. Newmark Distinguished Professor in the Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Dr. Bond has worked in the field of household energy, especially ameliorating emissions of solid-fuel burning that affect householders and their neighbors. Her group has done field measurements in Nepal, China, India, Uganda, and Honduras, and they provide technical assistance to organizations in these countries to support ongoing evaluation capabilities for household energy. Bonds work promotes the view that each household is a physical system that provides services, and that these services are intricately connected with well-being and self-perception. Bond holds an interdisciplinary Ph.D. in Civil Engineering, Mechanical Engineering and Atmospheric Science from the University of Washington. She is a 2014 John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Fellow and a Fellow of the American Geophysical Union. In 2018-19, she will hold a Leverhulme Visiting Professorship at the University of Leeds, UK, to explore the intersection of energy provision and climate vulnerability for low-income populations.

Laura Doering

University of Toronto

Laura Doering is Assistant Professor of Strategic Management at the University of Toronto. As an economic sociologist, her research examines how micro-level decisions, relationships, and circumstances affect economic outcomes in developing countries. Substantively, she focuses on entrepreneurship and financial access in low-income areas. Her research has been published in the American Journal of Sociology, American Sociological Review, and Sociology of Development. A former Fulbright Scholar, Professor Doering's research has been profiled in The New York Times and The Globe and Mail, and her writing has appeared in BBC News, CBS News, Salon, and other outlets.

Margaret Frye

University of Michigan

Margaret Frye is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at the University of Michigan. She studies how culture shapes demographic behavior, with a particular interest in education and sexual relationships. Empirically, her research has focused primarily on sub-Saharan Africa and has employed a variety of methodological strategies. She is currently engaged in data collection for a new project in Kampala, where she is examining changing understandings of status resulting from Uganda's simultaneous expansion of university education and contraction of employment opportunities.

J. Craig Jenkins

Ohio State University

J. Craig Jenkins is Professor Emeritus of Sociology at the Ohio State University. He directed the Merhson Center for International Security Studies from 2011 to 2015 and is now senior research scientist. Jenkins is author of more than 80 referred articles and book chapters, as well as author or editor of several books including The Politics of Insurgency: The Farm Worker's Movement of the 1960s; The Politics of Social Protest: Comparative Perspectives on States and Social Movements, with Bert Klandermans; Identity Conflicts: Can Violence be Regulated?, with Esther Gottlieb and Handbook of Politics: State and Society in Global Perspective, with Kevin T. Leicht. He has received numerous awards, including the Robin M. Williams Jr. Award for Distinguished Contributions to Scholarship, Teaching and Service from the Section on Peace, War and Social Conflict of the American Sociological Association (2015), fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (2009), Joan Huber Faculty Fellow (2003), chair of the Section on Committees of the American Sociological Association (1998-2000), chair of the Section on Political Sociology, ASA (1995-96), and chair of the Section on Collective Behavior and Social Movements, ASA (1994-95). He was elected to the Sociological Research Association in 1993 and was a national security fellow at the Merhson Center for International Security at Ohio State in 1988, a Merhson Center professor from 2003-06 and chair of the Sociology

Department, 2006-2010. Jenkins has received numerous grants from funding agencies, including the National Science Foundation, National Endowment for Humanities and Russell Sage Foundation. In 2010-11, he received a Liev Eriksson Mobility Grant from the Norway Research Council. In 2011-12, Jenkins was a Fulbright Fellow to Norway and a visiting professor at the Peace Research Institute of Oslo (PRIO) in Oslo, Norway. In 2017, Jenkins and co-investigator Maciek Slomczynski received a $1.4 million grant from the National Science Foundation for a four-year project on “Survey Data Recycling: New Analytic Framework, Integrated Database and Tools for Cross-National Social, Behavioral and Economic Research.”

Terrence McDonnell

University of Notre Dame

Terry McDonnell is Associate Professor of Sociology, Concurrent the Keough School of Global Affairs. He is a cultural sociologist who studies objects and media in everyday life. His recent book, Best Laid Plans: Cultural Entropy and the Unraveling of AIDS Media Campaigns (University of Chicago Press) explains why best practices and evidence-based HIV/AIDS media campaigns in Ghana often fail to change peoples’ belief and behavior. Developing the concept of “cultural entropy,” he finds that international health NGO’s find it difficult to control their messages. As modernization and globalization makes culture more complex, the chances for misinterpretation and misuse of AIDS campaigns increase. Best Laid Plans won the Eliot Freidson Outstanding Publication Award from the Medical Sociology section of the ASA, and won honorable mentions for best book from the Sociology of Development Section, and the Communication, Information Technologies, and Media Sociology Section. His research has been published in numerous sociological journals including The American Journal of Sociology, Sociological Theory, Social Problems, Poetics, Qualitative Sociology, and Theory and Society. His broad interests include health and AIDS, social movements, development, gender and sexuality, urban studies, theory, and qualitative methods.

Paul McNamara

University of Illinois

Paul E. McNamara is an Associate Professor in the Department of Agricultural and Consumer Economics and the Division of Nutritional Sciences at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, and he is a Visiting Member of the faculty of Njala University (Sierra Leone). Dr. McNamara directs AgReach (www.agreach.illinois.edu), a program at the University of Illinois for strengthening agricultural and nutrition extension services and implementing development activities around the world with a goal of increasing smallholder economic and food security. He serves as Principal Investigator for the USAID-funded INGENAES project and the Feed the Future Strengthening Agriculture and Nutrition Extension project in Malawi. Dr. McNamara holds a Ph.D. from the Department of Applied Economics at the University of Minnesota and an M.P.P. from the Harvard Kennedy School. Since a seven-month field internship in South Cotabato Province in the Philippines in 1982, Dr. McNamara has been involved in international development activities. He has worked in The Gambia, the Philippines, India, Uganda, Sierra Leone, Liberia, Ghana, Nepal, Mexico, Honduras, Tajikistan, Republic of Georgia, Saudi Arabia, Malawi and other countries in the context of international development, research, extension, education, and business.
